NEWS OF BROOKLYN.

RESTORED TO CONSCIOUSNESS

WILLIAM SCOTT AROUSED AFTER TWEN-TY-TWO MONTHS OF COMA.

HE IS BLIND, ALMOST DEAF AND PITIABLY WEAK

-LITTLE HOPE FOR FURTHER RECOVERY. William Scott, the employe of D. A. Doyle, who has a trunk store in the Astor House, Manhattan, ho on October 20, 1896, was benten into a state of that insted for twenty-two onths, has just been brought to consciousness by the use of electricity. He became conscious of his surroundings and regained his ability to talk on Friday at the home of Mr. Doyle, No. 659 Hancock-st., where he has been since the terrible experience through which he passed. The improvement in Scott's condition was brought about by Dr. W. L. Rickard and Dr. H. C. Brosh, an electrical expert. One of these men has been in almost constant attendance upon their patient, whose case has been discussed as one of the most remarkable

The fight in which Scott was injured caused much mment at the time. One evening, just as he was leaving the store with a satchel full of money, inspectors from the Bureau of Incumbrance came to clear the sidewalk, because the goods had been displayed on the walk. Scott thought the he was trying to make away with a bag that had been filegally displayed. In the struggle Scott was hadly injured. Marks Schlesinger, one of the in-spectors, is now under arrest for the assault. For twenty-two months Scott in his ravings has been strugging with his assailants, endeavoring to save his employer's money. His right hand has been held to his stomach, and his left hand on his forehead. When removed by force, the tightly drawn muscles would bring the members back again. The eyes remained closed, and the teeth had to be pried apart to administer food and medicine. A succession of diseases attacked the weakened body, including meningitis and pleurisy. the astonishment of the physicians the patient lived the astonishment of the physicians the patient aved through it all.

Now Scott has been brought to a realization of his condition; but he is blind, almost deaf and so feeble that it is hard for nim to move his limbs. His case is thus really more pitiable than it was before, as there is little hope that he can eve more than a wreck of what he once was—a large strong, active, intelligent man. He talks in a loud and harshly gutteral tone, but so thickly that the utterances are almost harriculate.

Scott has talked some of the happenings on the fateful day, when he lost his reason, and has slowly been made aware that the war with Spain has just come to a close.

Life has little prospect in it for Scott, and he will doubtiess never be able to get further than the camp chair in which he sits day by day, blind and almost unheeding.

J. J. WHITE AND HIS TROUBLES.

AN EARLY MORNING DISTURBANCE IN RAYMOND

STREET JAIL, AND TWO STORIES REGARDING IT.

Cries of "Murder!" and "Help!" ringing down the corridors of the Raymond Street Jall on Thursday morning about 2 o'clock brought a deputy-warden hastily to the top floor, where the civil prisoners are confined. There he found Josiah J. White, the centric broker, who is also famed as the disturber of the pence of Sheriff Creamer, with whom he is boarding. White was howling lustily. When the warden approached White smiled sweetly, and held out a bunch of letters with the request that they be mailed. The deputy, angry at being called for such a thing, refused White's request. The up for such a thing, refused White's request. The latter said that then he would "raise Cain" for the rest of the night. He then proceeded to begin, and the deputy decided that there was nothing to do except to mail the letters.

That is the story the wardens tell. White's yound son, who is almost a daily visitor at the leif, save man his father did not yell until the warden refused to mail the letters. According to the boy, one of the keepers has been in the habit of mailing the letters for five cents a night. On the pisnt in ouestion the man wanted the cans. White refused the demand, and the man refused to mail the letters. White then called for another "postman."

DEFENDERS' GOOD WORK.

SUPPLIES AND DELICACIES SENT TO SAIL ORS-A TRIP DOWN THE BAY FOR

The Defenders' Auxiliary Corps of this borough has accomplished a large amount of work in th last month. It has cared for the wife and family of a soldier, has bought and presented to the Long Island College Hospital an apparatus for admin-istering gas, and has sent toe cream once a week to both the Long Island College and St. Peter's hos pitals, and individual members have also sent fruit and felly.

Miss Condit, a member of the corps, has raised

$224, dividing the sum between three Brooklyn hos-pitals. On August 11 the corps forwarded $159 to aid the men at Montauk. Its present sewing bees are held for the purpose of making pajamas for use at the hospital camp. Another member has already sent a liberal supply of underclothing to the camp.

Miss Ida Suicliffe, head of the Long Island College Hospital, was asked if any diversion could be offered to the convalencents at the hospital, and suggested a sail down the bay. The corps has completed arrangements for taking them on a boat, with band and refreshments, and will also provide cars to take the men to and from the wharf. The president of the corps, Miss Margaret Seymour Hall, is still at Broadalbin, Fulton County, N. Y.

THE LAWN-MOWER.

A PROTEST FROM ONE OF ITS VICTIMS

From The Hartford Courant.

The inventor of the lawn-mower may have made money. Presumably he defent care for that, though He probably was one of those lofty characters who think only to hand their names down to postericy along with those of Watts, Frankin, Edison and the other public benefactors. He made "velvety lawns" possible. Feople who look upon those lawns, of which this cit; has so many emerald examples, may bless his neinery and declare that the world could have done without the telephone bette, than without the lawn-mower.

But how about the man behind the machine, the mower of the lawn. In a word, he is the person in the community who most fully appreciates the deartiptions of the horrors of the Culosa campain in the hot and magry weather. He work looks pretty. The sound of the cilcking blades makes merry muse through the street. The odor of newmown hay is almost constant. But as he plots his weary round day after day his thoughts run back to that fellow who revolutionized the lawn business by inventing the mower. His lips do not frame blessines, if it's a particularly hot day he hopes the gentus had as disagreable an experience as possible with the Grim Resper's old-fashioned cutter.
